13. (SBU) Begin suggested remarks:

The United States welcomes the adoption of this critical resolution extending the arrangements related to the Development Fund for Iraq. This action clearly demonstrates that the Security Council recognizes the tremendous progress that Iraq has achieved. Furthermore, it secures the Iraqi Government's ability to use its resources to engage in vital activities that will safeguard the future of the Iraqi people.

The extension of immunities for Iraq's funds will provide Iraq additional time to resolve the debts and settle the claims inherited from the previous regime. The United States looks forward to Iraq taking the necessary steps to address those debts and claims.

While it is imperative that Iraq receive the sustained support of the international community - we must also recognize that Iraq has become increasingly capable, democratic, and stable. The Iraqi government and the Iraqi people can take great pride in the progress that has been made. 2008 has been a year of significant achievement for Iraq -- not only in the security sector, but also in the political and economic fields, in rule of law, reconstruction, and productive, positive engagement with neighbors and the international community.

Iraq's responsible actions - at home and abroad - from the passage of key legislation and work toward national reconciliation. . . to the fruitful participation in the Neighbors' process and the International Compact with Iraq - tangibly demonstrate Iraq's progress and the need for rapid and complete reintegration into the community of nations.

Adoption of Resolution [####] today sends an important signal that the Council is firmly committed to reviewing resolutions that pertain specifically to Iraq.

Circumstances in Iraq have fundamentally changed since many of these resolutions were first considered. Iraq today is significantly different than it was when Resolution 661 was adopted in 1990.

Today, the Government of Iraq is committed to working with its neighbors and others as a trusted and credible international partner. Therefore, a review regarding continuation of all outstanding Chapter VII resolutions specifically related to Iraq is justified; the time is ripe for a reconsideration of these outstanding resolutions based upon current facts.

STATE 00133293 004 OF 004

The United States looks forward to the Secretary General's report on relevant facts and the Council's swift consideration of actions to return Iraq to its rightful place in the community of nations. We are committed to working with the Council and with the Government of Iraq to restore that international standing as soon as possible.

End remarks.
